Trade of Cincionati. The facilities for fast transportion at all seasons of the year, which railroads have supplied, naturally work a great change in the manner of trade, especially in goods, as the difference between winter and summer rates of transportation on merchandise, bears so small a proportion to the cost that stocks may be replenished at any season. The heavy spring and fall purchases which were necessary when transportation depended on water communications, and the consequent accumulation of interest and of bills falling due about the same time, will naturally be replaced by smaller and more frequent purchases. Less capital will be absorbed in dead stock, and the difference in interest alone will be a respectable profit, and will, in many cases, turn the beam between solvency and insolvency.

This change has been complete in New England. Small stocks, kept complete by monthly or weekly purchases, have entirely superseded the old style of heavy purchases and large stocks, which regularly became much broken in assortment in the long intervals. The same is becoming the case in the West. Old habits of trade cling long after the conditions on which they were formed have changed; but the change is going on, and adaptation to the new order of things, marks the enterprise and tact that make the successful trader.

With this naturally comes a corresponding change in the wholesale trade. Retail dealers have not that inducement to go to New York that they had when they purchased a stock for six or eight months at one time. Time and traveling expenses, and the time lost on goods in transit, become relatively of more importance, and retail traders naturally look for their supplies nearer home. This tendency is rapidly increasing the wholesale trade in the principal cities of the West. The Cincinnati jobber boying in New York with city acceptances, buys on the same time and just as low as the New York jobber. He can afford to duplicate the most favorable purchase made of the New York merchant, by merely adding the cost of transportation, and this he gets at the lowest rates by shipping in large lots and at favorable seasons. The object of the retailer, other conditions being the same, is to put all the interest and risk on the wholesale dealer that he can, by purchasing only as he needs. The jobber has from eix to eight months time to go on, in his purchases.

It is not difficult to perceive that not only will the wholesale trade largely increase in the Western cities, but the greater advantages furnished to the retailer will make the difference between success and failure. Cincinnati is, by her position, entitled to be the greatest Western market for this trade, and is, we suppose, at this time; and the present circumstances of the West, with large crops in the North, and a promise of an extraordipary demand in the South, should greatly increase the trade of this city. But this city has sharp and enterprising competition on every hand; on the North, Cleveland, Toledo, Detroit and Chicago, pushing their trade South with all the hereditary Northern activity and enterprise; and on the West, Louisville and St. Louis, each of them wide nwake to their interests. If we may judge of the exertions used to extend and increase trade in all these places by their respective newspapers-and they are usually deemed correct indices-the only one that is easy and supine is Cincinnati. In none of them is there so poor a show of trade made in the newspapers as in Cincinnati. It may be a good principle to trust trade to nature and Providence, if all points would play fair; but so long as all the rest assist nature by unremitting exertions, it is not much of a question what the result of resignation will be to Cincinnati.

In connection with this, we may be pardoned for mentioning the medium offered to business men by the large circulation of the DAILY PRESS. Not only does our circulation exceed, as we believe, that of any other paper in this city, but is many of the surrounding towns it approximates to that of the local papers. For instance, we circulate 500 numbers of the DAILY PRESS in Indianapolis. which is equal to the local circulation of many of the daily papers in the small cities; and our routes extend to Terre Haute, Lafayette and Muncie. In Ohio, we send about 500 to Columbus, the same to Dayton, 245 to Portsmouth, and we have respectable routes in most of the towns in the south part of the State; while in Toledo, the most northern town in the State, a region hitherto but little reached by Cincinnati papers, we have a route of about 200. In Kentucky we have routes on the principal lines of communication to this place, and in the neighboring towns of Newport and Covington, the circulation of the Panss is greater than the aggregate of all the other Cincinnati papers.

Advertising naturally becomes metropolitan in its ways, as it will be seen that more business men can be reached by a single advertisement in the Passs, than by advertising in fifty local papers. Taking this into consideration, the comparative cost of advertising in the Pauss becomes merely nominal. We are convinced that this medium offers one important means by which this city can command the trade to which its position and the character of our merchants entitle it.

A Prophetical Detective-Jeromiah Implicated.

A Beirut correspondent of the Boston Congregationalist has discovered that the alaughter in Syria was all owing to Jeremiah. Certainly it would be a great sin for Christian nations to send their armies into Syria to stop the fulfilment of the prophesics. The writer has the right spirit. He hears of a horrible massacre, and straightway searches the Scripture to find whether It was to be then his sont was filled with joy to find that it was all in the providence joy to find that it was all in the providence of fied. He writes.

*Still later intelligence informs as that the Koords have descended upon Damascus, and have corried off rast augusters of women and children. Thus is the prophesy of Jeremish again receiving its fulfilment 'Concerning Damascus, Hamath is confounded and Arpad, for they have heard evil tidings, they are faint-hearted; there is sorrow on the small team not be quiet. How is the city of passes and left—the city of major! Therefore, her young man shall fall in her streets, and all the men of war shall be cut off in that day, suith the Lord of Hosts; and it shall consume the palaces of Benhard."

NEWPORT NEWS. Our-Door Sports.—The Newport Cricket Club of our city have in anticipation a meeting, which will probably take place next Saturday ovaning, to take into consideration another match-game with the Union Club, of Cinclanati. We hope the prelimination for the same may be successfully agreed upon by both club.

The Kentucky Town-Ball Club are in active praparation for their coming match-game with the Mayavillians, and the contoiding score, with the Excelsions. The first occurring on the light and the latter on the 23d.

KNOCKED DOWN.—A soldier, comewhat under the influence of liquor, was knocked down hat evening, on the ferra-best, by one of a party who were arguing about pointies. A TO DESCRIPTION

NEMESIS. A Novel. By Marion Harland,

author of "Alone," "Hidden Path," "Mom Side,"

LONG CHARLEST THE ZHIVIN Seventh and Signal-size Wonderful Child!

MISS TENNESSEE CLAFIAN IS A Second Sight Seor and Astrology. This young lady has been traveling since she was eleva years old, and has been and owed from her birth with a supermatural gift to such an atonishing degree, that she convinces the most ekeptical of her wonderful powers. She gives information of absent friends, whether living or dead, together with the rast, present and future events of life; also of best money or property, identifying the persons concerned with so much certainty, as to scarcely leave a secure or curve. She prescribes for Diseases, telling their causes and location, with so much satisfaction as to much certainty, as to scarcely leave a secure or curve. She prescribes for Diseases, telling their causes and location, with so much satisfaction as to merit and receive the confidence of all who have consulted her; and many difficult complaints have been entirely banished by her wonderful ministrations. She can see and point out the medicine to cure the most obstinate diseases—even those that for years have badled our best physicians, and can direct salves and liminents to be made and used, that will cure old Scros, Evere Sores, Cuncers, Sprains, Weakness in the Back and Limbs, Rheumatism and other complaints of long standing; and has performed astonishing curse upon those who had long since lost their sight and hearing, or userly so, by disease. In short, through the assistance of some superior power, she is endowed with the isaling art.

The will point out to the Ladies and Gentlemen their former, present and future partners, telling exactly those that are dead and living, their treatment, disposition and character in life; and through her superior power she is endowed with the isaling art.

The will point out to the Ladies and Gentlemen their former, present and future partners, telling exactly those that are dead or alive, and through her interment, disposition and when required will go into an unconscious state and travel to any part of the world, hunt up absent friends, whether dead o MISS TENNESSEE CLAFLIN IS A
